

Marie Skłodowska-Curie Fellowship at Institute of International Studies, Charles University, Prague

Call for Expression of Interest

Institute of International Studies at the Faculty of Social Sciences, Charles University, Prague, Czech Republic looks for outstanding researchers to host in the framework of the EU Marie Skłodowska-Curie funding scheme.

Institute of International Studies is a multidisciplinary research and teaching institution, well-established in the European research networks. Research at the Institute focuses on developments in Europe, Eurasia, and North America from three main perspectives: transformation, relations, and collective memory. The institute has been three times holder of the Jean Monnet Centre of Excellence and hosts a Charles University research centre of excellence on collective memory.

Marie Skłodowska-Curie framework aims at enhancing career development and prospects of experienced researchers. Potential applicants are expected to benefit from a long-term stay at Charles University and, in turn, enrich the Institute by their specific perspectives and experience. Given the competitiveness of the call, applicants are expected to have a proven research and publishing track-record.

Applicants should send a short proposal (up to three pages, including research objective, their motivation to come to Charles University, and the expected benefit for their future career) and an academic CV to Dr. Tomáš Weiss (weiss@fsv.cuni.cz) by 30 June 2017. Selected applicants will be informed by 15 July 2017, provided with an advisor from within the Institute and administrative assistance to complete and submit the application to Marie Skłodowska-Curie action by the deadline of 14 September 2017.
